Reflection

From this assignment, I have taken notes that life as a capable adult with jobs (freelance or under employee) compared to students has such a disparity that we must not take lightly. As an employee/ employer, you have responsibilities to those above and below you while ascertaining that your weaknesses will not hinder your progress. Eg: Being flexible during university time compared to work life, it is obvious that we have to juggle our time more as a worker, because we are not under the jurisdiction of anyone else to remind us our schedule is too packed, too skimmed out and so on. We have to learn on our own that we make mistakes and also know how to fix it by asking the right people. Moreover, one of the speaker which is Ms. Liyana (UTM alumna) has mentioned that her job is not directly related to her course (Graphics and Multimedia Software). In fact, her skills in her job as QA testing analyst has proven that learning hard to understand your job by scrutinizing every tiny details necessary to complete a project is truly crucial in order to be hired. All in all, what I have learnt here is that whatever you learn will come around to assist you in the future, keeping you afloat and steady in the ever-changing world. But of course, it is also a sign to always be humble with the experiences we have gained because in the end, everyone needs someone's shoulders to lean on.
